

Fears and Phobias Tour

Face your fears with this tour!

Sacrifice Stones Level 2, Visible Vault

Get your heart beating. Visit the Cuauhxicalli, a basalt basin created specifically to hold sacrificial hearts and blood. The Aztecs believed that by performing certain rituals, they could ask the gods to perpetuate the great cosmic order of their world.

Roars Interactive Mezzanine, Dinosaur Hall

Have a roaring good time with this audio interactive. Located on the mezzanine level of the Dinosaur Hall, hear how Parasaurolophus used their long-curved crests to produce low-pitched bellows. Listen if you dare.

Locusts Level 1, Becoming Los Angeles

A plague has come to L.A. Well, it did. Back in 1860s locusts swarmed all over Southern California, munching their way through large areas, causing massive havoc wherever they want.

Oarfish Level 2, Discovery Center

Like a ghost from the deep, oarfish are rarely seen near the ocean's surface, instead they stay at depths up to 3,000 feet. This silvery sleek fish swam into Big Fisherman Cove in Catalina. Oarfish can grow up to 36 feet long!

Frankenstein Level 1, Natural History of Horror

Come close to an embodiment of creepiness — Frankenstein. The movie about a scientist who brought a corpse back to life, which (here's the twist) turned out to have a murderer's brain.

Widow Wall Level G, Nature Lab

If you're an adventurous arachnophobe, visit our Nature Lab widows. Crawling over miniature dioramas, these fierce black and brown widows weave their webs, maybe after a visit they will weave their way into your heart.

Rats Level G, Nature Lab

Stop by our Nature Lab and have a chat with a furry rodent. Rats have lived alongside humans for thousands of years. They're adaptable, aren't picky about what they eat, and aren't bothered by pesky humans. In fact, some people even raise rats as their own beloved pet!

Snakes Level G, Nature Lab

Sssssscared? Don't be! Snakes aren't scary or slimy, these slithering sweetsies will change your mind! See yourself the way a rattlesnake "sees" you with our heat-sensing mirror.

What blows YOUR mind? Share, Tag, and Win #MindBlownLA